THIRTY-SIX GET THEIR DIPLOMAS

Last Day of Commencement at George Washington.

PRESIDENT NEEDHAM TALKS

Tells Students of the Importance of Discipline-Prizes and Degrees Given.

The last day of the eighty-fourth anton University was signalized by the assembling of over 1,000 people in the main auditorium of Continental Hall, where thirty-six diplomas of graduation were delivered to successful students.

Medals and without the main arriver are two-story brick house, near navy yard, on wide avenue, 50 feet of parking; marble steps, porcelain bath, gas range. Why pay ren, when you can get a snap like this one? nual commencement of George Washing-

Medals and prizes for study honors debate, and history were also awarded.

The feature of the day was the address of Dr. Charles Willis Needham, president of the university. After thankng the D. A. R., for their kindness in allowing the use of the hall for the graduation exercises, he said:

We are entering on a new era of university life. The past, covering over hree-quarters of a century, has been onorable and worthy of the respect and eneration of all mankind. We have low agreed to enter on a new life, and have reorganized upon a foundation broad enough for all to stand upon who are interested in education in the National Capital.'

Dr. Needham then explained what a university really is, saying it is intended to turn into the world cultivated human beings. He said specialization has become a necessity in education, and then pointed out the advantages to be derived from special studies.

Importance of Discipline.

To the graduates he said: "How we rebel against discipline—this marching and counter-marching; these sham battles; this standing long in one place with all the sinews crying for action. It is monotonous and tedious and dull. But at last the day of graduation comes—glorious day—and after and dull. But at last the day of graduation comes—glorious day—and after that he real battles of life. Then what a cloud of witnesses! Men' are choosing their champions from the lists.

"How it counts to be strong; to have a fine poise; to step regularly; to obey promptly; to fear not, and to hold one's self nobly in the struggle; this is splendid

But this is not the part nor the por-"But this is not the part not the partition of the man who has escaped discipline. It is for the tried man, and as he wins—as he surely will—there will rise up in his grateful memory the faces of men who were grand masters in his college days."

Diplomas Conferred.

After his address the diplomas were conferred upon the graduates. The B. A. candidates were presented by Dean Wilbur and Prof. Gore, the B. S. by Dean Wilbur, and the higher degrees by Prof. Munroe.

The winners of the following prizes
